

Open positions – European Youth Energy Network

Communication Strategist (6-8h/week)

Are you a passionate student or young professional, and want to contribute your skills and curiosity towards a strong youth voice in energy? Then the European Youth Energy Network (EYEN) is the right place for you to thrive.

Let's reshape youth engagement in the European energy transition together!

EYEN is the Federation of energy-focused youth organisations in Europe, uniting organisations from across Europe and reshaping youth engagement towards a just, empowered and collaborative energy transition. We advocate for the meaningful engagement of young people in the energy transition, and we create spaces that allow them to have an impact. For the coming years, we have big plans on empowering, connecting, coordinating, educating and advocating where youth and energy meet. EYEN's flagship annual event: the European Youth Energy Forum with its 12 practical policy proposals.

To communicate impactfully about the international non-profit association and change the discourse about youth in the energy transition we are building a strong team. We promise that if you join us, you'll embark on a huge learning journey and meet like-minded people from across Europe and beyond.

Do you want to think bigger than creating great texts & visuals to grow the role of youth in the European energy transition, in an ambitious federation? Strategize with us on how to bring the topic into the news and spaces that will make a difference.

→ Your role

- Get your hands dirty by analysing what works and what doesn't, learning from other organisations, fine-tuning the key messaging, thinking up creative campaigns and creating a comms plan with us
- In support of the comms lead, keep an eye on the bigger strategy and bring vision into team discussions, putting operational issues into perspective
- Ask the tough questions, and walk the path to the answers (see below)

→ You are a good fit for this role if you

- Are a strategic mind and love to ask the challenging questions, to then design and test solutions to them: Which stories do we want to tell? How can we make people emotional about the problem? How can we break down complexity, or activate a community? What do we focus on, how do we improve our internal organisation with its limited resources to maximize impact?
- Speak and write confidently in English
- Have previous experience in communication (if you know something about communication strategies, planning & trends then that's a plus)
- Are excited to see how you can contribute to the energy transition through great communication
- Can work independently, yet also love teamwork

→ The experience is 100% worth it. This is why ▼

- You will work in a dynamic (and fun!) group of international young professionals and students, co-creating the development of an impactful organisation
- You will learn a lot about youth involvement in the energy sector and benefit from our network with contacts to a wide range of organisations and institutions
- You will be part of a project that can fulfil you as key player in the integration of youth in the energy transition

Apply now by sending your motivation and CV until 28 May 2023 to careers@youthenergy.eu, adding any proof of work would be desirable.
