

Open positions – European Youth Energy Network

Director of Secretariat (8-10h/week)

Are you a passionate student or young professional, and want to contribute your skills and curiosity towards a strong youth voice in energy? Then the European Youth Energy Network (EYEN) is the right place for you to thrive.

Let's reshape youth engagement in the European energy transition together!

EYEN is the Federation of energy-focused youth organisations in Europe, uniting organisations from across Europe and reshaping youth engagement towards a just, empowered and collaborative energy transition. We advocate for the meaningful engagement of young people in the energy transition, and we create the space to allow them to have an impact. For the coming years, we have big plans on empowering, connecting, coordinating and advocating where youth and energy meet. EYEN's flagship annual event: the European Youth Energy Forum with its practical policy proposals.

To bring the internal workings of this ambitious, international organisation to the next level and support the efforts of its young energy changemakers, we are building a strong team. We promise that if you join us, you'll embark on a huge learning journey and meet like-minded people from across Europe and beyond.

Will you contribute your bringing-things-together skills to the European energy transition, in an ambitious federation?
