

Open positions – European Youth Energy Network

Graphic Designer (4-6h/week)

Are you a passionate student or young professional, and want to contribute your skills and curiosity towards a strong youth voice in energy? Then the European Youth Energy Network (EYEN) is the right place for you to thrive.

Let's reshape youth engagement in the European energy transition together!

EYEN is the Federation of energy-focused youth organisations in Europe, uniting organisations from across Europe and reshaping youth engagement towards a just, empowered and collaborative energy transition. We advocate for the meaningful engagement of young people in the energy transition, and we create spaces that allow them to have an impact. For the coming years, we have big plans on empowering, connecting, coordinating, educating and advocating where youth and energy meet. EYEN's flagship annual event: the European Youth Energy Forum with its 12 practical policy proposals.

To communicate consistently about the international non-profit association and give behind-the-scenes insights into youth in the energy transition we are building a strong team. We promise that if you join us, you'll embark on a huge learning journey and meet like-minded people from across Europe and beyond.

Will you contribute your creatively visual superpowers to the European energy transition, in an ambitious federation? Make communications beautiful and clear — for more impact.
